Discover? What is Discover? Discover what?

What do we need to discover today, when the world is facing so many problems?

There are so many difficulties at home in the UK, Germany and the rest of Europe.

How can the work of Discover possibly help?

This woman's life vastly improved when she learnt how to make a fuel-efficient stove. Now, she doesn't need to carry firewood on her head as often and the environment benefits too.

Isn't one of the biggest issues facing us here in Winnenden, the UK, Germany, Italy and Greece the number of refugees, especially crossing the Mediterranean from Africa?

Good question!

Members of Discover e.V. are convinced of two things,

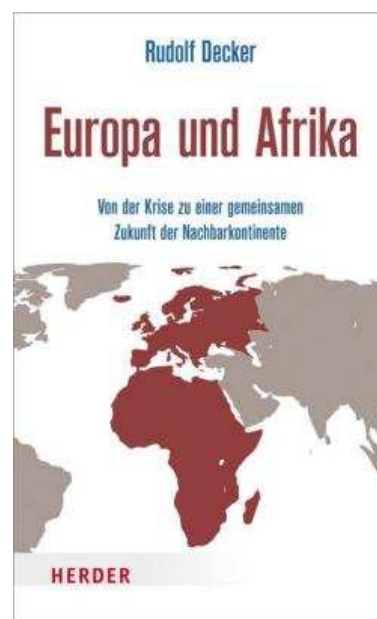

1. Many African young people feel that they have no future. Sometimes they suffer poverty or they are persecuted because of their political or religious affiliations. Like successive generations in Europe, they will, of course, continue to migrate to where they think the opportunities are better.

The aim of Discover is to enable communities in Africa to discover and use their own skills and resources, so that people can build a future at home rather than feeling they have no choice but to leave.

2. A new relationship must be developed between Europe, with its diminishing population, and Africa, with its growing population. With fair trade, ethical and appropriate development aid and a cessation of arms sales, both continents could benefit.

This is the theme of a visionary new book which has just been published. It is by Rudolf Decker and is entitled "Europa und Afrika" – but unfortunately it is only available in German. The question of what we can do to help people throughout Africa to develop a sense of hope in the future needs urgent consideration.
