

Easter 2021

At Easter as Christians we celebrate the death and resurrection of Jesus.

Death and resurrection is a part of everyday life.

We experience the wonder of Easter every time we sow a seed. The seed is dry and to our eye it could be dead. But nourished by nutrients in the ground, this tiny seed breaks open and develops new life, it grows into a vegetable, or a medicinal plant, or even a tree.

It is a miracle of nature.

We experience something similar in our communities. Sometimes we work with individuals who have lost hope, and sometimes even an entire community is despondent and also has a sense of hopelessness. But after engaging with such individuals and communities, after working with them and loving them, for example with training in climate smart farming, they too find hope again, spring into life and blossom like the leaves or flowers of a tree.

I wish you, your families and communities a very blessed Easter, and trust that you experience time and time again the joys of these wonders!
